

Are We Better Off Under Trump?

The Short Answer Is No

By Simon Rosenberg and Chris Taylor

NDN

Thursday, October 25th, 2018

Median Income Growth Has Slowed

Percent Change in Median Household Income

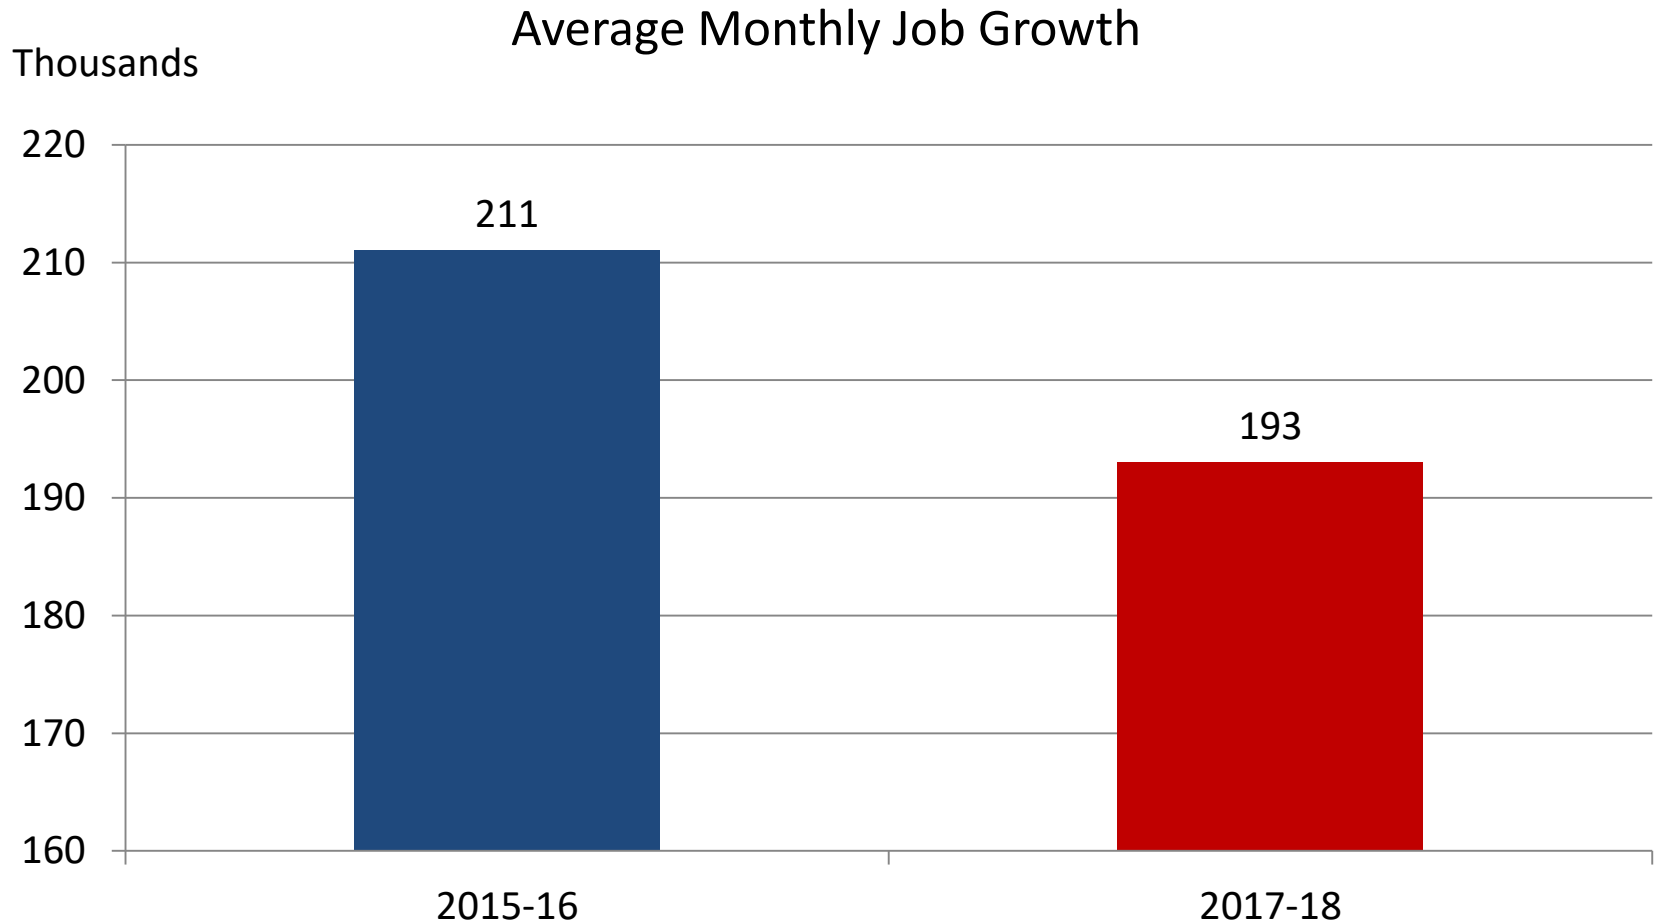

Real Wage Growth Is Weaker

Average Annual Percentage Change in Real Hourly Wages

Job Growth Has Slowed

The Deficit Has Surged

Deficit as Percentage of GDP

Gas Prices Are Rising

Average Price of a Gallon of Gas

Interest Rates Are Rising

Average Yield on 10-yr US Bond

Causing Mortgage Rates To Rise Too

Average Rate on 30-yr Fixed Rate Mortgage

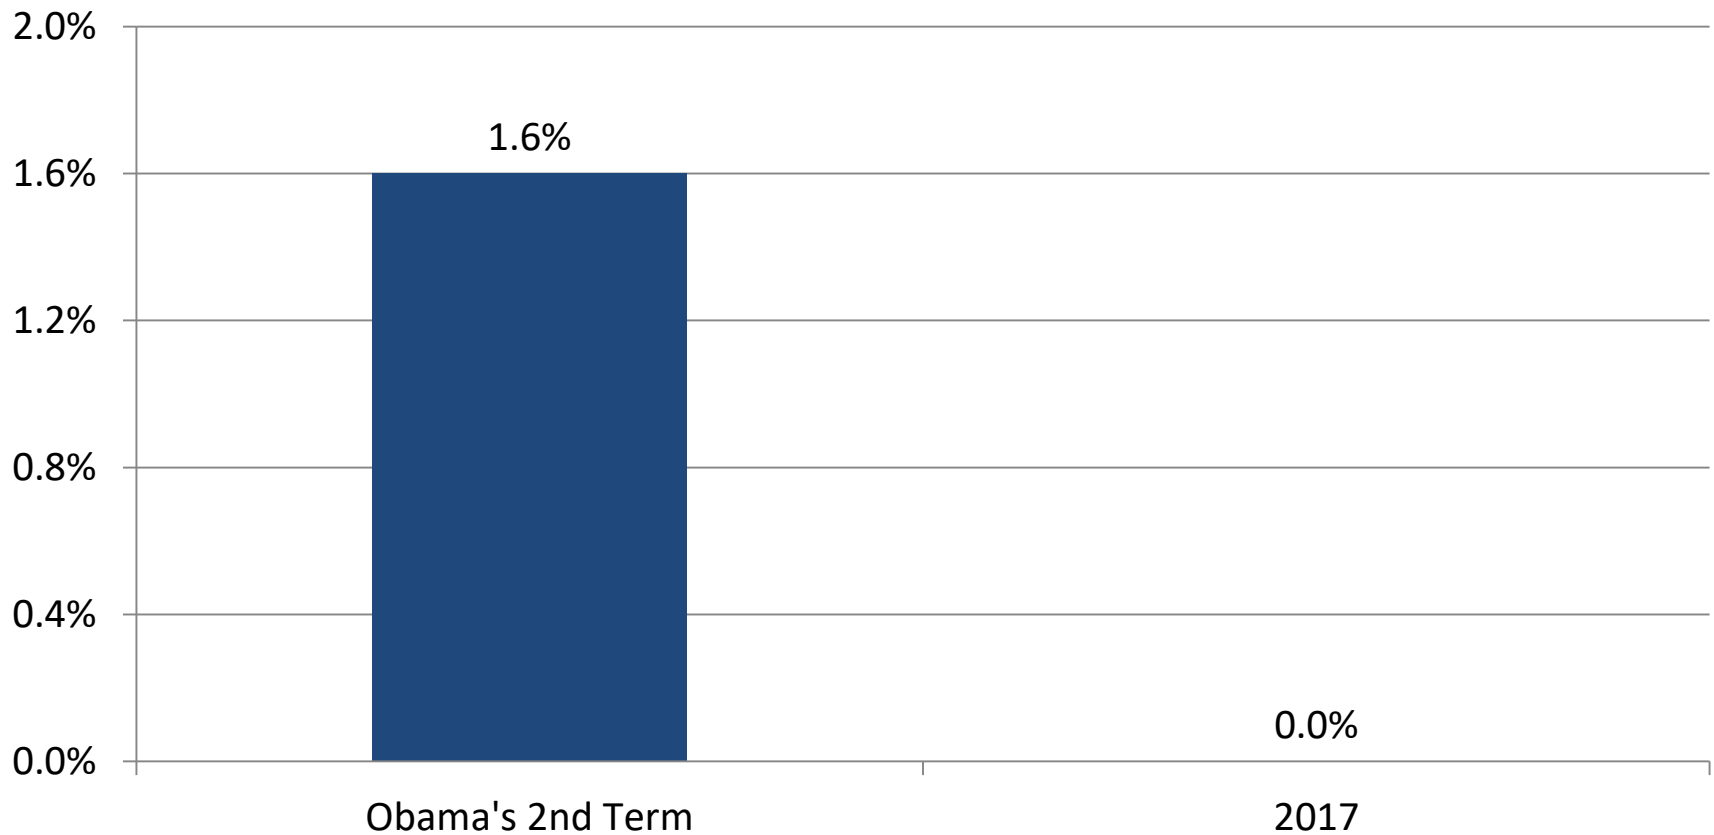

The Trade Deficit Is Widening

Annual Percentage Increase in the Trade Deficit

The Uninsured Rate Has Stopped Falling

Average Annual Decline in the Uninsured Rate

And Has Started Rising For The Poor And Middle Class

Average Annual Decline In The Uninsured Rate Among Those Earning Less Than $100k/yr

Even Coal Production Has Fallen

Average Annual Coal Production

And The Stock Market Is Growing More Slowly

Average Annual Increase In The S&P 500

